
BRIDGING SCHOLARSHIPS, SPRING 2015

The US-Japan Bridging Foundation funds scholarships through AATJ to help students to study in Japan.

The Bridging Project is accepting applications from American students participating in semester- or year-long study-abroad programs in Japan that begin between January and April 2015. The deadline for receipt of applications is October 8, 2014.

Funding from private foundations, corporations, and individuals has made it possible to award 20 scholarships to assist students with travel and living expenses while studying abroad in Japan. Contributors to the Bridging Scholarship fund include The Freeman Foundation (lead donor); Aflac Japan, Laurence Bates, Kenji Govaers, Estee Lauder K.K., Exxon Mobil G.K., Eric Feigenbaum, Robert Feldman, Richard Folsom, Anthony Gilmore, the Robert Grondine Memorial Scholarship Fund, Gudni and Eiko Gudnason, Ellen Hammond and Yasuo Ohdera, Harry Hill, Barry Hirschfeld, Debbie Howard, Ichigo Asset Management, the Japan Foundation, Japan-US Friendship Commission, JP Morgan Securities Japan, Lockheed Martin Global, Inc., Jon Malamud, Roger McDonald, Arthur Mitchell, Mitsubishi Corporation (Americas), Morgan Stanley Japan, Maneesh Kalra, Robert and Janette Noddin, Oak Lawn Marketing, ORIX USA, Jay Ponazecki, Tom Pederson, Thierry and Yasko Porte, Hayashi Sasaki, John Sasaki, Taisuke and Catherine Sasanuma, Elliott Segal, Dennis Sheehan, Allan Smith, David Sneider, George and Brad Takei, Temple University-Japan Campus, Gary Thomas, Toyota Motor North America, and U.S. Japan Council-TOMODACHI Initiative.

Undergraduate students majoring in any field of study are eligible to apply for these scholarships. Japanese language study is not a prerequisite.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens and must be enrolled as undergraduates in a college or university in the U.S. Their terms of study in Japan should be at least three months in duration. Recipients of Bridging Scholarships will receive a stipend of $2,500 (for students on single-semester programs) or $4,000 (for students on academic-year programs). The deadline for applications is October 8, 2014, for students who will be studying in Japan during the Spring 2015 semester. This is not a postmark deadline. All materials must be received by the end of business on Wednesday, October 8.

The Bridging Scholarship application form is available on paper or as a Word form document that can be filled out online, printed, and mailed with other application materials. Go to <http://www.aatj.org/studyabroad/scholarships> for the form. Please submit three copies of all materials except transcripts and letters of recommendation. Faxed or emailed applications will not be accepted. The results of the selection will be announced in late November. Selection is made by a committee and is based on academic potential and financial need.

Each scholarship recipient will be expected to send a brief report about his or her study in Japan to the AATJ office within 60 days of returning from abroad. These reports will be valuable for students, teachers, and advisors who are selecting study-abroad programs in Japan.
