Co-Presidents’ Message

Long Traditions, New Directions: 50 Years of Japanese Professional Collaboration: that is the title of a special session that will be held at the upcoming ACTFL Conference. In our final message as Co-Presidents, we would like to focus on the spirit of that title. This organization has a long tradition of collaboration, beginning with the teachers of the original Association of Teachers of Japanese, then adding the National Council of Secondary Teachers of Japanese and the National Council of Japanese Language Teachers, and ending with this organization that brings us all together: The American Association of Teachers of Japanese. Japanese teachers have always pursued opportunities to share materials, improve their teaching, write curriculum and standards, and bring exciting learning experiences to our students both in their classrooms and in Japan. For your dedication to the Japanese field over the last 50 years, we applaud you!

Now, as we leave this office, we would like to take a moment to reflect on the last two years, and look forward to the future. We have been able to maintain some of our “long traditions” and guide the organization in some “new directions” thanks to the hard work of all of the Board Members and, as always, our amazing Executive Director, Susan Schmidt.

Advocacy (http://www.aatj.org/advocacy)
We have maintained and expanded our advocacy efforts for Japanese language education. AATJ representatives have attended the JNCL-NCLIS Conferences and visited the offices of many members of Congress. We offered advocacy webinars, with extended resources available to teachers on the website. Noriko Okada Coyle, a teacher at North Penn High School, was featured as a teacher who had saved her Japanese language program from budget cuts. The message is that advocacy must happen well before the “crisis stage.” This is true for both the organization at the national level and our local programs and our efforts must not wane. We are confident that William Matsuzaki, our new Co-Director representing the K-12 level will continue this work with Co-Director Janet Ikeda, and we would like to thank outgoing Co-Director Mamiya Worland for her extensive service.

Publications (http://www.aatj.org/journal; http://www.aatj.org/newsletter)
AATJ’s journal is in its 47th year of publication, and continues to be the premier peer-reviewed journal in the fields of Japanese literature, pedagogy, and linguistics. Coordinating Editor Hiroshi Nara and his colleagues in each subject area have done an outstanding job at ensuring that the content is of the highest quality and that semianual publication is on time. Newsletter editor Emi Ochiai Ahn has produced an attractive and news-packed quarterly newsletter for the past two years: many thanks to her.

Another essential piece of advocacy is the extent to which students are engaged and excited about their learning. AATJ’s traditionally popular activities have continued, like the Nengajo Contest and the Japanese National Honor Society. We’d like to thank outgoing Co-Director Lynn Nietzel, continuing Co-Director Shingo Satsutani, and Nangajo Guru Kazumi Yamashita for their hours of work on Student Activities. The Nengajo Contest is now an elementary through university-level contest. The National Japanese Exam (NJE) has undergone a complete revision, thanks to the efforts of a team of teachers led by Director Tomoko Takami and the following teachers: Miyuki Johnson, Fukumi Matsubara, Eiko Ushida, Atsuko Ando, Katy Sutlles, and Noriko Vergel. The exam is a standards-based experience for students, with a focus on proficiency and including content that mirrors the real world. The intention was that the NJE experience would be a positive one for students – showing them just how much they CAN DO in Japanese. For teachers, the exam was designed to represent the latest thinking in reading and listening assessment, thereby serving as an impetus for instructional improvement. We would like to thank Nobuko Hasegawa, outgoing Director for administering NJE in the past two years.

High quality Japanese language instruction remains the best advocacy for our programs. We thank Professional Development Director Eiko Ushida and previous Director Yasuko Ito Watt for their leadership in this area. The JOINT Program has offered online professional development on “Content-Based Instruction,” “Basic Concepts of Japanese Language Teaching” and “Reading Strategies and Language Instruction.” The annual Spring Conference in conjunction with AAS Conference featured a full day of more than 100 sessions on literature and language topics. AATJ teachers will again offer sessions at the Fall Conference, in conjunction with ACTFL, such as “Teaching with Tablets & Technology: Bridging the Gap with Digital Natives” and “Differentiated and Personalized Instruction in Advanced Japanese Courses.” Thanks to Noriko Fujioka-Ito and Yasuko Takata Rallings (Fall Conference Directors-ACTFL) and Masahiko Minami and Joan Ericson (Spring Conference Directors-AAS) for their hours of work in organizing these events.

Teachers also learned how to create interpretive assessments at the National Japanese Exam writing workshop in San Diego, and that discussion will continue in the NJE session at ACTFL. The Japanese Global Articulation Project (J-GAP) held meetings with many AATJ participants in Virginia, Washington, DC, and Maryland. Teachers who excel in both instruction and professional involvement continue to be recognized with the AATJ Teacher Awards, yearly. Please consider nominating a colleague!

The future of professional development is most certainly in the creation of a vibrant online professional learning community (“like” the AATJ page on Facebook!) as well as the continuation of regular, in-person opportunities to collaborate. As in the past 50 years, our level of collaboration is our greatest strength.

Our first line of service to individual members has become the AATJ website. Over the past year it was completely redesigned to be much more user-friendly and stylish! If you have not visited lately, please check it out.

The next level of service is our relationship with our Affiliates. The key to the success of the AATJ consolidation has been the work of the local Affiliates in encouraging members to use the new membership system. We would like to thank all of the local Affiliate leaders and members for your willingness to make these changes. Motoko Tabuse, who is now leaving her
It's Time to Renew Your AATJ Membership

To those members who have already renewed their memberships in AATJ 2014: THANK YOU!

We hope that you find membership in this professional association valuable. Please take a moment to renew, either online (go to http://www.aatj.org/membership) or using the paper form that can be found on page 27 of this issue of the newsletter.

If you are not sure whether you need to renew, please contact the office at aatj@aatj.org, and we will be happy to check for you.

Don’t miss the many benefits of membership: student participation in the National Japanese Exam, the Nen-gajo Contest, and the Japanese National Honor Society; conference attendance at member rates; publications and professional development activities; and much more.

role as VP-Secretary to become our new President, has been tireless in her efforts to streamline Affiliate relations, assist new Affiliates, and keep everyone in the leadership “loop.” Our future desire would be to see more involvement or affiliates at the community college level and among teachers of heritage speakers.

Financial Base
In addition to membership fees, AATJ has always pursued other funding sources to maintain our wide range of activities. AATJ is now managing the Japanese-Language Proficiency Test (JLPT), and we have pursued more corporate sponsorships and memberships. We are so grateful to those companies and organizations that have made so many programs possible over the past two years: the Japan-US Friendship Commission, the Japan Foundation, the Shoyu Club of Tokyo, the US-Japan Foundation, the Toshiba International Foundation, Nippon Express Travel, JTB, Nagoya University, Yamate Gakuin, Cheng & Tsui, Kodansha USA, Kinokuniya, and Tuttle Publishing. The expansion of the National Japanese Exam to Level 1 and college level also provide more income. For the future, we encourage further pursuit of corporate sponsorships, new-member outreach, and the continued improvement of student activities and professional development as ways to generate more members and more income for the organization.

Leadership
The organization can only remain strong if new leaders continue to bring in vibrancy, creativity and energy. We have worked with the Japan Foundation’s leadership development workshop program to identify and develop new leaders and then involve them in AATJ activities. It is essential to maintain such a pipeline of human resources to lead the organization well into the future. Other areas we might wish to pursue would be in finding ways to support or involve graduate students in Japanese and encouraging more university students to become teachers of Japanese language.

We are confident that Motoko Tabuse, as your new president, will bring her outstanding organizational skills and energy to this position. Quite literally, she will be doing the work of “two people” from now on (or, the work that it took two of us to do for the last two years!) She has plenty of support, however, with Susan Tanabe continuing as VP-Treasurer and the newly-elected Yoshiko Saito-Abbott moving into the VP-Secretary position, as well as the many other continuing and new Directors as mentioned above.

Finally, we would like to send sincere thanks to Susan Schmidt, who has been Executive Director of this organization for 16 years, and Kathy Ajisaka, who has worked in the AATJ office as Executive Assistant for 13 years. While leadership may change, they are the one constant, making sure all of us stay on task and moving the organization forward. The great majority of accomplishments in the last few years are the result of Susan’s leadership, organization, and efforts far beyond her daily salary. She is the true advocate that keeps AATJ going!

It has been our pleasure to serve you. We both intend to stay involved with AATJ at various levels and we look forward to continued collaboration and friendship for many years to come.

ANNUAL FALL CONFERENCE 2013, Orlando FL

The second annual AATJ Fall Conference will be held during the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) Annual Convention and World Languages Expo, Friday, November 22, through Sunday, November 24, 2013, at the Orange County Convention Center and Rosen Centre Hotel in Orlando, Florida. Information on registration and housing for the conference can be found at http://www.actfl.org/convention-expo. Current members of AATJ can register at ACTFL member rates. When you register for the conference, please be sure to indicate that you are a member of AATJ so that AATJ will get credit for your attendance. We also strongly encourage you to become a member of ACTFL, which allows AATJ to receive part of your registration fee. Registration fees: $300 onsite (after October 30).

Presentation Sessions: This year, AATJ will sponsor three concurrent sessions including 12 research paper presentations and 33 one-hour learning sessions which will be held in the Mezzanine Meeting Rooms at the Rosen Centre Hotel over the three days of the conference (see the schedule on the following pages for the complete list).

Three AATJ special sessions have been planned: (1) Special Panel: Expanding Japanese Teacher Community Through AATJ Special Interest Groups (3:45-4:45PM on Friday, 11/22 in Salon 19), (2) Panel: Teaching Literature in the Japanese Language Classroom (5:00-6:00PM on Friday, 11/22 in Salon 19), and (3) Special Event: Long Traditions, New Directions: 50 Years of Japanese Professional Collaboration (5:15-6:15PM on Saturday, 11/23, in Signature 1).

In addition to the AATJ-sponsored sessions, the ACTFL conference program features the following Japanese-related panel sessions: (1) Learning Outcomes of Multimedia Blogging in a Japanese Language Classroom, Friday (11/22), 11:00 AM - 12:00 PM, in Room W305B (Orange County Convention Center); with presenter Tomoko Oda (Indiana University of Pennsylvania); (2) Global Classmates: Increasing Japanese Language and Cultural Proficiencies through Technology, Saturday (11/23), 8:00 - 9:00 AM, in Room W305B (Orange County Convention Center); with presenters Andrew Scronce (Kizuna Across Cultures and Langley High School), Ayako Smethurst (Kizuna Across Cultures), and Shanti Shoji (Kizuna Across Cultures); (3) Varying Classroom Instruction to Aid Japanese Vocabulary Development (ACTFL Research Roundtable), Saturday (11/23), 4:00 - 5:00 PM, in Grand Ballroom C (Rosen Centre Hotel); with presenters Brett Walter, Laura Ballard, and Kelly Torres.

General Membership Meeting and Reception: The AATJ General Membership Meeting (4:00-5:00PM in Salon 19) and AATJ Reception (6:30-8:30PM in Signature 1) will be held before and after the special event celebrating the 50th anniversary of AATJ (Formerly ATJ) on Sat, 11/23.

Local Affiliate Council Meeting: The local affiliate council meeting will be held from 12:00-1:00PM on Fri, 11/22 in Salon 19 of the Mezzanine Meeting Rooms at the Rosen Centre Hotel.

Luncheon: The AATJ Luncheon will be held in Grand Ballroom B of the Rosen Centre Hotel from 12:30-1:45PM on Sat, 11/23. This year, students from the University of Florida and the University of South Florida will present a dance for the attendees of the luncheon. The tickets are $56 after 10/30. Please purchase the luncheon tickets when you register for the conference. AATJ will not sell tickets at our booth. If you have already registered but did not request a luncheon ticket, please contact ACTFL by phone at 508-743-8561 or fax at 508-743-9626 (have the confirmation number you received when you first registered available) or purchase your luncheon ticket from the on-site registration desk.

Japan Pavilion: The Japan Pavilion in the Exhibit Hall of the Orange County Convention Center will feature entertainment as well as exhibits by publishers, travel agents, universities, and other companies and services related to our profession. Please visit us in Booths 1022 – 1035.

Sumie (Japanese Ink Painting) Performance and Workshop: The Association of Florida Teachers of Japanese will conduct a Sumie Workshop during the Exhibit Hall Visit Free Time (10:00-11:00AM on Friday, 11/22; 9:00-10:00AM, 3:00-4:00PM on Saturday, 11/23; and 9:00-10:00AM on Sunday, 11/24) at the Exhibit Hall of the Orange County Convention Center. In addition to the Sumie performance and workshop, examples of Shodo (Japanese calligraphy) by students studying Japanese in the state of Florida will be exhibited in the Japan Pavilion.

2014 ACTFL Annual Convention and World Language Expo San Antonio, TX—November 21-23, 2014

The next ACTFL Conference will be November 21-23, 2014, at Henry B. Gonzalez Convention Center and Grand Hyatt San Antonio Hotel in San Antonio, TX. The deadline for proposal submissions is Wednesday, January 15, 2014.

2013 AATJ Teacher Award Recipients
Ms. Kaoru Kimura (K-12 category)
Ms. Akiko Kawano Jones (Post-secondary category)

Please join us in congratulating this year’s AATJ Teacher Award recipients, Ms. Kaoru Kimura of St. Paul’s School for Boys in Maryland and Ms. Akiko Kawano Jones of Bowling Green State University in Ohio. The AATJ Teacher Awards recognize out-standing teachers who have demonstrated excellence in teaching, advocacy, and leadership in Japanese education both locally and nationally. AATJ will present the awards to the winners at the AATJ Awards Luncheon during the ACTFL Annual Convention held in Orlando in November. If you plan to come to ACTFL, please join us and congratulate both winners at the AATJ Luncheon on Saturday, November 23 (12:30-1:45 pm).

Ms. Kaoru Kimura, St. Paul’s School for Boys
Ms. Kimura, a teacher in the Japanese language program for her school’s lower school, describes herself as “born to be a teacher”. She always finds innovative ways to engage her students, raise their proficiency level, and give them a lifelong passion for Japanese language and culture. She effectively collaborates with other Japanese teachers in her middle and upper schools to make their classes exciting and fun, attracting more students to the Japanese program than are enrolled in Spanish. She also contributes to building strong connections with the community in and outside of the school by publishing “Japan Times” newsletters and organizing a “Japan Fair”.

Thank-you message
I am very honored to receive such a huge award! The entire school, as well as the students and parents, have been excited about this big news. Promoting the Japanese program has been essential for me to acquire the number of students every year. Although we have been targeting only my school with the promotion, the word has been spreading throughout our community now. I have heard many nice comments about our Japanese program from people outside of our school and this has surprised me. Year by year, we have more and more students taking Japanese at my school.

This has been achieved not only by me. In our school, we have three other Japanese teachers: William Matsuzaki in Middle School, Aki Julian in Upper School, and Maki Okamoto at the Girls’ School. The ideas that I thought of for our program can’t become a reality without their support. Collaboration is one of the key ingredients for our success at our school. I would like to say thank you for their continuous support.

Again, thank you very much for selecting me this year for the AATJ’s 2013 Teacher Award! I will keep devoting my life to promoting our Japanese program throughout our community and beyond. I am also looking forward to seeing you all at the ACTFL banquet in Orlando!!

Ms. Akiko Kawano Jones, Bowling Green State University
Ms. Jones has nurtured a Japanese program since 1983 and has not lost her enthusiasm and energy. Her tireless dedication to teaching and advocacy of Japanese education is highly recognized by a number of alumni, teachers of Japanese, and Japanese companies in the state of Ohio. She coordinates weekly Japanese Club activities on campus, and has developed many exchange programs and internship programs with companies in both Ohio and Japan. She has also been very active in outreach activities including organizing annual Ohanami Cherry Blossom Festivals and Japanese American Business Dinner Meetings to connect the university and business communities.

Thank-you message
It seems to be a dream. I never imagined receiving such an honor when I came to the States to teach the Japanese language 40 years ago. When I received the email letter of award from AATJ, I had to read it again and again just to make sure if it was true.

I am humbled to receive this prestigious award, and I am grateful to the AATJ Teacher Award Review Committee members for selecting me as a recipient of 2013 Teacher of the Year Award. I would like to thank Dr. Etsuyo Yuasa, Dr. Hiroaki Kawamura, and Ms. Janet Stucky-Smith for nominating me for this award. I would like to thank them for honoring me to represent Japanese teachers of Ohio.

I also would like to extend my heartfelt gratitude to my colleagues and administrators of BGSU, Consuls General of Japan in Detroit, mayors of City of Bowling Green, business communities in Ohio, the exchange schools and alumni in Japan. They have encouraged me for the last 30 years to grow and enhance the Japanese program at BGSU.

Last, but not least, I would not be here as a Japanese language teacher without the students of Bowling Green State University who attempt a challenging language and who trust in my teaching. They give me energy and a driving force every day to be a better teacher each year.
National Japanese Exam (NJE)

The National Japanese Exam (NJE) is an online, proficiency-oriented, standards-based and culture-related assessment tool for middle (junior), high school, and college students who are studying Japanese as a second language. It was developed by AATJ (American Association of Teachers of Japanese) as a way for such students to test their Japanese skills and participate in a nationwide exam with awards for high achievement. The NJE also helps teachers see students’ strengths and weaknesses in certain areas. Teachers can use the results to give various school-level awards to students (participation certificates, and Bronze, Silver, and Gold medals) to highlight the success of their Japanese programs. Taking the NJE can also serve as a preparation for high school students who are planning to take the Japanese AP, IB or SAT tests in the future. The NJE is an entirely online test that teachers administer to students via a “Quia” platform.

The NJE started in 2010, and was originally developed by NCJLT (National Council of Japanese Language Teachers) for middle (junior) and high school students. Since then, the format and scope of the NJE has been revised and expanded.

New This Year!

The 2014 NJE has two new features: 1) a Level 1 test has been added to the previously existing Levels 2 and 3; and 2) college students are now invited to participate.

Registration and Test Dates

The 2014 NJE will be administered between March 3 and April 11, 2014. Teachers can register their students beginning December 2, 2013. Registration will close on February 8, 2014. Registration fees will be the same as last year: $8.00 per student.

For complete details about the NJE, please visit the website: http://www.aatj.org/nje.

Spring 2014 JOINT Online Course

Content-Based Instruction for Advanced Japanese

AATJ’s JOINT online professional development program will offer “Content-Based Instruction for Advanced Japanese: Course Development and Language Training” in early spring 2014. This six-week online course, open to both native and non-native-speaking teachers of Japanese, at all levels of instruction, is designed to develop both the language proficiency and the pedagogy skills of the participants, who will learn about and create content-based instruction (CBI) lessons that develop both advanced reading skills and cultural knowledge of students.

Description: The course consists of four parts: (1) principles of CBI, (2) curriculum development for CBI, (3) instructional strategies for CBI, and (4) assessment. The course utilizes existing materials as examples, but hands-on experience is emphasized, and course participants are required to create their own materials to be used in their classes. Participants work on assigned readings and lectures independently and also engage in collaborative learning, working in pairs or groups that include both native and non-native speakers. Assignments and evaluations are individualized to accommodate the differing needs of the participants.

The course will be conducted between January 13 and March 9, 2014 (six weeks of class plus one week of orientation and technology familiarization and one week of evaluation).

Instructors: Masako Douglas (California State University, Long Beach); Eiko Ushida (University of California, San Diego).

Fees: The fee for the course will be $95 for AATJ members and $125 for nonmembers, payable after enrollment is confirmed.

Participation: Participants are expected to spend approximately 5-7 hours per week on coursework: reading, listening to a lecture, working on assignments and projects, and participating in weekly discussion sessions. Participants must be available for a weekly online discussion at one of the following times: (1) Thursdays from 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. Pacific Time; (2) Thursdays from 6:30 - 7:30 p.m. Pacific Time, or (3) Saturdays from 10:00 - 11:00 a.m. Pacific Time.

Credit: Optional graduate credit (2 units) from the University of Colorado is available for a separate fee of $120.

Bates College: Visiting Assistant Professor of Japanese and East Asian Studies

The Asian Studies Program of Bates College, a highly selective private liberal arts college located in south-central Maine, invites applications and nominations for a three-year position in Japanese and East Asian Studies to begin in August 1, 2014. ABD candidates will be considered; Ph.D. is expected at time of appointment. A native/near native proficiency in Japanese and English is required. We seek candidates with the flexibility and breadth to teach both culture and language courses. Training and experience in Japanese language pedagogy are expected. Culture courses will depend on the appointee’s expertise and interest, but should deal with some aspect of Japanese and East Asian civilization, which could function as foundational gateway and/or culminating capstone courses in the East Asian Studies Program. Applicants from the humanities and social sciences with expertise in Japanese transnational experience, other social issues with contemporary global relevance, film, gender, ethnicity (including Korean and Okinawan), or popular culture are especially encouraged to apply.

The College and the Asian Studies Program are committed to enhancing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to this goal are encouraged to apply; the search committee expects candidates to identify their strengths and experiences in this area.

Review of applications begins immediately and will continue until the position is filled; however, priority is given to complete applications received by October 23, 2013. For more information about Asian Studies at Bates, see our webpage (http://www.bates.edu/asian/).

Applicants should submit electronically, in PDF format, to Nancy LePage, Project Specialist, 207-786-6480, at academicservices@bates.edu a letter of application, curriculum vitae, representative syllabi, and names and contact information for at least three references, including one who can speak to the candidate’s teaching experience/expertise. Send only the documents listed. Short-listed candidates will be invited to send additional materials (e.g., letters of recommendation, graduate school transcripts, writing samples, course evaluations, syllabi, statement of teaching philosophy, etc.). Please include your last name and R2139 in the subject line of all submissions.

Bates is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Because the college recognizes that employment decisions often involve two careers, Bates welcomes applications for shared positions. Employment is contingent on successful completion of a background check. For more information about the college, please visit the Bates website: www.bates.edu.

Dartmouth College: Assistant Professor of Japanese Language, Literature, and Culture

The Department of Asian and Middle Eastern Languages and Literatures at Dartmouth College invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor rank in Japan Studies. Appointment will become effective July 1, 2014, with teaching duties beginning in September 2014. Applicants for this position must either hold a PhD or be ABD; additionally, they must have native or near native proficiency in modern Japanese and English. The classroom teaching load is four courses per year, to be taught over three of the four quarters.

The field of specialization is open to any that complements the college’s current strengths, and we welcome applications from range of disciplines and areas of expertise (literature, cultural studies, visual culture, sociolinguistics, cultural anthropology, or other appropriate field). Candidates should be able to teach in Japanese thematic courses in their academic discipline as well as both introductory classes and seminars in English. Additionally, candidates would be expected to contribute to the administration of the program and share the directorship of the annual ten-week study-abroad offering in Chiba, Japan.

Applicants should submit, via email, a cover letter, curriculum vitae, writing sample (25-50 pages), and one syllabus for a course integrating Japanese language material and academic research to Mr. Gerard Bohlen at: asian.and.middle.eastern.languages.and.literature@dartmouth.edu. Three letters of recommendation should be sent separately.

The review of applications will begin November 20, 2013. Preliminary interviews will be conducted via SKYPE. Questions should be directed to James Dorsey at: james.dorsey@dartmouth.edu.

Dartmouth College combines a commitment to innovative scholarship with dedication to excellent teaching. One of the most diverse institutions of higher education in New England, Dartmouth College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, has a strong commitment to diversity, and in that spirit encourages applications from women and minorities.

Indiana University – Purdue University, Indianapolis (IUPUI): Full-Time Lecturer in Japanese

The Department of World Languages and Cultures at Indiana University-Purdue University, Indianapolis (IUPUI) is accepting applications for the full-time position of Lecturer in Japanese, starting August 1, 2014.

Qualifications: A minimum of Master’s Degree in Japanese or related field (M.A.) required; A.B.D. or Ph.D. preferred; training in teaching methodology a plus. Native or near native fluency in Japanese and English required. Experience in teaching Japanese language and culture at the college level and evidence of excellence in language teaching... required. Expertise in teaching writing skills, experience or interest in multi-section course coordination and/or study abroad program direction preferred. Interest and experience in developing community connections, service learning and internship opportunities a plus. Applicants whose work incorporates a global perspective and demonstrated commitment to issues of diversity in higher education are particularly encouraged to apply.

Responsibilities: Teaching 12 credit hours of all levels of Japanese language and content courses in area of expertise per semester. (This may be 3 or 4 courses per semester, according to the number of credit hours per course.) Active participation in program and department functions and operations along with other school and/or campus service duties. Student advising, study abroad direction, and multi-section course coordination responsibilities as needed.

Salary is negotiable and commensurate with experience. Retirement plan, medical, dental, and life insurance provided. Contract is for a 10-month appointment (renewable annually) at the rank of Lecturer in Japanese, beginning August 2014.

Review of applications will begin on November 15, 2013, and will continue until the position is filled. The following application materials are required for full consideration by the committee: (1) Letter of application with supporting documentation of teaching experience and excellence; (2) Current curriculum vitae; (3) Graduate transcript(s); (4) Three letters of recommendation. University of Kentucky: Assistant Professor of Japanese
The University of Kentucky invites applications for a tenure-track position as Assistant Professor of Japanese to begin August 2014. The successful applicant’s tenure home will be in the Department of Modern and Classical Languages, Literatures & Cultures (http://www.as.uky.edu/MCLLC/), a dynamic academic unit committed to interdisciplinary collaboration and dialogue among faculty with diverse geographical interests, theoretical concerns, and methodological approaches. Applicants must have PhD in hand by July 2014.

We seek candidates with the experience and expertise to coordinate the robust language program, which offers four years of Japanese and works with a range of teaching staff, and serves a variety of majors throughout the university. Research area is open, but specialization in Second Language Acquisition, Applied Linguistics with a focus on Japanese, or Japanese Language Pedagogy will complement our growing undergraduate and graduate programs. Candidates trained in related fields (e.g., cultural or literary studies of premodern Japan, trans-Asian studies, religious studies, etc.) are also encouraged to apply. In addition to administering the Japanese language program, responsibilities of the position include pursuing an active research program, teaching a total of four courses per year in the Japanese Program and Department, and coordinating language-related extracurricular/outreach activities. Active participation in academic life of the Department is also expected. Competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Applicants should send a letter of application, a CV, a research statement, writing samples, and a teaching portfolio (which should include, at minimum, a teaching statement that discusses philosophy, successes, experiments, etc.; sample course syllabi; and sample teaching/course evaluations) via Interfolio at http://apply.interfolio.com/23093. Applications will be acknowledged. Short-listed candidates will be requested to submit three letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin November 8, 2013, and continue until the position is filled.

Questions should be directed to Masamichi Inoue at msonoue@uky.edu.

The University of Kentucky is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity University that values diversity and is located in an increasingly diverse geographical region. It is committed to becoming one of the top public institutions in the country. Women, persons with disabilities, and members of other underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply.

University of Macau: Full/Associate Professor of Japanese Studies
The University of Macau is a leading higher educational institution in Macao and is making strides towards becoming internationally recognized for its excellence in teaching, research and service to the community. The University is growing rapidly with a number of new strategic initiatives including the relocation to a new campus and the establishment of the largest Residential College system in Asia. English is the University’s working language.

The Centre for Japanese Studies of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities invites applications for two positions at the ranks of Full/Associate Professor of Japanese Studies.

The Centre for Japanese Studies is an established and lively scholarly community with a strong international tradition for the teaching of Japanese language. In addition to its undergraduate BA programme in Japanese Studies, the centre offers an undergraduate Minor in Japanese Studies, as well as possible PhD supervision across the range of the department’s expertise. The centre has particular strengths in Japanese linguistics and anthropological approaches to Asian studies. Applications in all areas of Japanese Studies will be considered, but those in the areas of Japanese literature, Sino-Japanese relations, Japanese cultural, communication studies or translation studies will be particularly welcome. The successful applicant will be responsible for teaching language and content courses in Japanese at all undergraduate levels. Teaching and supervision at a graduate level may be expected within Japanese Studies or related areas.

Applicants must hold a PhD in Japanese Studies or in related areas. Applicants should have an excellent record of tertiary teaching and supervision experience and a distinguished record of research and publication at an international level. Applicants should have native or near-native fluency in Japanese and Chinese (Mandarin or Cantonese). An excellent command of English and experience teaching Japanese as a second/foreign language are also expected.

The selected candidate is expected to assume duty in August 2014.

Remuneration and appointment rank offered will be competitive and commensurate with the successful applicant’s academic qualification, current position and professional experience. The current local maximum income tax rate is 12% but is effectively around 5% - 7% after various discretionary exemptions.

Applicants should visit http://www.umac.mo/vacancy for more details, and apply ONLINE at Jobs@UM Full Professor (Ref. No.: FAH/FP/JS/10/2014) and Associate Professor (Ref. No.: FAH/AP/JS/10/2014). Review of applications will commence on 1 December 2013 and continue until the position is filled. Applicants may consider their applications not successful if they are not invited for an interview within 3 months of application.

University of Michigan: Residential College Japanese Lecturer

The Residential College (RC) at the University of Michigan seeks to hire a full-time Lecturer III to teach in and manage an intensive, proficiency-oriented Japanese language program. This is a non-tenure track position with an initial three-year appointment starting September 1, 2014. Subsequent renewal is contingent on enrollment and a three-year performance review. Terms and conditions of employment for this Lecturer III position may be subject to the provisions of a Collective Bargaining Agreement between the University of Michigan and the Lecturers’ Employee Organization. Applicants should have at least an MA and preferably a PhD in a relevant field and native or near-native competence in oral/written Japanese. Expertise and experience in curriculum and program development are preferred.

A unit within the larger College of Literature, Science and the Arts, the RC is a four year, living-learning undergraduate program that fosters dialogue between arts, humanities and the social studies. At the core of this curriculum, students typically study one of the six foreign languages offered, including Japanese, in a semi-immersion style that incorporates extensive classroom work with co-curricular learning activities such as daily lunch tables and opportunities to interact with more advanced and native speakers.

Teaching obligations include Intensive Japanese I (roughly equivalent to first year Japanese) in the fall semester and Intensive Japanese II (roughly equivalent to second year Japanese) in the winter term. Applicants interested in developing study abroad opportunities, teleconferencing and avenues for community-based learning are especially attractive.

Please send a letter of application, explaining interest in this position and overall teaching philosophy, CV, evidence of teaching excellence, and three letters of recommendation, to Chair, Intensive Japanese Search Committee, The Residential College, The University of Michigan, 701 East University, Ann Arbor, MI 48109-1245. Review of applications will start on October 31, 2013.

The University of Michigan is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Michigan State University: Tenure-Track Assistant Professor Position in Contemporary Japanese Language and Culture

Michigan State University invites applications for a tenure-system position at the assistant professor level in contemporary Japanese language and culture within the Department of Linguistics and German, Slavic, Asian, and African Languages, which will be the successful candidate’s tenure home. In addition, the position has specified commitments to teaching, research, and service in the Global Studies in the Arts and Humanities degree program, which studies how changing global dynamics across history and in the present unfold through humanistic, artistic, and critical knowledge practices.

The academic-year position begins August 16, 2014. Required are a Ph.D. by the time of appointment, college-level teaching experience, and native or near-native fluency in English and Japanese. The new hire’s research and teaching will foreground the relation between the literary, cultural, linguistic, and the digital specific to Japanese culture in the context of investigating the formation and circulation of a global culture mediated by new technologies. Familiarity with proficiency approaches to language teaching is highly recommended. Salary commensurate with qualifications.

Duties will include vigorous research, teaching, and service/outreach activities. The successful candidate will teach contemporary Japanese culture, language, and literature as well as courses in his/her specific research area (e.g., film, media). In addition, the candidate will teach courses in the Global Studies Program (globalstudies.msu.edu) and cross-disciplinary courses in the general education program Center for Integrative Studies in the Arts & Humanities (cisah.msu.edu).

The Japanese Program is one of the largest language and culture degree programs in the Department. The successful candidate will enrich the experience of the students, while benefiting from a supportive community that includes the Center for Language Teaching Advancement (celta.msu.edu), the Center for Language Education and Research (a national Language Resource Center) (clear.msu.edu), and the Asian Studies Center (http://asia.isp.msu.edu/).

Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching philosophy, three letters of recommendation, and selected sample(s) of research work. Review of applications will begin December 2, 2013, and continue until the position is filled. Applications must be submitted electronically at the Michigan State Human Resources web site jobs.msu.edu. Posting: 8644

IAPL brings together language instructors and theatre practitioners, people who hitherto had not often had much to do with one another, to explore the ways in which we as human beings interact and communicate with one another. Especially for those of us who teach and learn language, theatre offers us wonderful techniques to hone our skills, to make the task of learning and instructing more enjoyable and more efficacious, and to be more aware of how we impart ideas and feelings to one another. This conference integrates practice and theory, with a judicious mix of academic papers and more hands-on workshops that are the bread and butter of theatre exercise and instruction.

The Shikoku conference will include a theatrical performance by students of Shikoku Gakuin University, lectures, presentations, and workshops led by Oriza Hirata.

MA in Applied SLA at Carnegie Mellon

The Masters in Applied Second Language Acquisition at Carnegie Mellon University is a one-year, intensive program preparing U.S. and international students for careers in second language teaching in Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Spanish, and English as a Second Language (ESL). The program, now inviting applicants for its fourth year, draws on strengths of the Department of Modern Languages at Carnegie Mellon in the areas of second-language acquisition, cultural studies, pedagogy, and technology-enhanced learning. MA graduates will be eligible for employment in institutions of higher learning, as well as in private schools or public (alternative-certification) secondary schools, and (especially in ESL) in a multitude of settings abroad. The MA in Applied SLA may also lead to further graduate work in second language studies.

Prospective students include holders of undergraduate degrees with three profil
- native speakers of English with a major in foreign language studies
- native speakers of English with humanities degrees and second-language experience
- international students with degrees in humanities and language-related fields.

The application deadline for the fall 2014 class is February 3, 2014. For additional information see the program website at http://www.cmu.edu/dietrich/modlang/graduate/ma/.

J-LEAP Program Is Accepting Applications

Applications to be a host school for the Japanese Language Education Assistant Program (J-LEAP) are now available online. This program seeks K-12 Japanese language teachers to apply to become Lead Teachers to young, native Japanese assistant teachers who have studied Japanese language pedagogy. In addition to receiving a teaching assistant for two years, selected schools will be provided with a $1,000 stipend to purchase teaching materials for the Japanese language classroom. Please note that J-LEAP assistant teachers cannot serve as independent teachers in the classroom. They are not certified and need to be supervised by a certified teacher.

Please click on the link below and scroll down to the J-LEAP section. You will find links to downloadable program prospectus and application on the right.

The deadline for 2014-15 applications is January 21, 2014.

In Memoriam: Dr. John Young

John Young, a Japanese scholar at Georgetown University, University of Hawaii, and Seton Hall University, who was an interpreter for Gen. Douglas MacArthur after World War II and later the co-author of widely used textbooks for teaching the Japanese language, died in peace on Sept. 8 at a hospital in Livingston, N.J. He was 93 years old.

In his role as an interpreter, Dr. Young came to Washington D.C. in 1946 as a member of a Chinese delegation to an international commission to determine postwar policies in Japan. He received bachelor's and master’s degrees from Georgetown University’s School of Foreign Service in 1949 and 1951, respectively, and a doctorate in history from Johns Hopkins University in 1955.

Dr. Young taught Japanese history and language at Georgetown until 1962, then spent two years teaching in Japan at a branch of the University of Maryland. He taught at the University of Hawaii from 1964 to 1974. He began in the 1960s to publish the first of series Japanese textbooks, Learn Japanese: New College Text, Vol. 1-3. The books, written with several authors, included instruction for elementary through college-level students and were used in hundreds of schools throughout the United States.

Dr. Young had been affiliated with Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J., since 1974 where he directed an Asian bilingual curriculum development program for the U.S. Department of Education. After retiring from Seton Hall in 1990, Dr. Young returned to Georgetown for a year in 1994. In recent years, Dr. Young was a founding member and executive director of the Committee of 100, an organization of prominent Chinese Americans that provides a cultural and intellectual forum for Chinese concerns.

Survivors include his wife, Byoung-Hye Chang of West Orange, N.J.; three children, Alice Young of Little Falls, N.J., and Nancy Young and Peter Young, both of New York; two brothers, Jackson Yang of Highland and George Yang of San Gabriel, Calif.; and five grandchildren.
THE WORLD'S MOST ADVANCED
JAPANESE-ENGLISH CHARACTER DICTIONARY, REVISED AND EXPANDED

THE KODANSHA KANJI DICTIONARY
Editor in Chief: Jack Halpern
5-7/8 x 8-1/4  2,112 pgs  13 appendices, 3 indexes  978-1-56836-408-7  $79.95

This all-new edition of Jack Halpern's landmark New Japanese-English Character Dictionary has been updated to include all the current Jōyō and Jimmei Kanji, while retaining the features that have distinguished it over the years as the #1 source for highly detailed information on the meanings and functions of Sino-Japanese characters.

- The System of Kanji Indexing by Patterns (SKIP) — a revolutionary method of looking up kanji based on their geometrical patterns
- A total of six lookup methods and three indexes that allow even beginners to locate entries quickly and with little effort
- Core meanings, or concise keywords that define the dominant sense(s) of each character — an extremely useful feature
- 4,408 entry characters — 821 more than in the previous edition — including all the kanji that advanced learners are likely to encounter
- 65,000 senses for 49,000 words and word elements show how each character contributes to the meanings of compounds
- 5,550 synonym articles and almost 700 usage notes
- 4,300 character forms, with a thorough treatment of nonstandard forms
- 13,400 character readings, including Chinese readings and readings used only in names
- 2,136 stroke-order diagrams provide step-by-step instruction on how to write the Jōyō Kanji
- 240 compound-formation articles clarify the etymology of compounds
- 13 appendices present a mass of invaluable kanji-related information

Uses hiragana rather than romanized Japanese for all character and compound readings.

JACK HALPERN is the CEO of The CJK Dictionary Institute (CJDI) in Japan. A lexicographer by profession, he spent almost twenty years compiling this dictionary and its predecessor, the New Japanese-English Character Dictionary. He is also the Editor in Chief of The Kodansha Kanji Learner’s Dictionary, recently revised and expanded.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The 21st Princeton Japanese Pedagogy Forum (PJPF) will take place on May 10-11, 2014, at Princeton University. The theme of the Forum is "Dialogue: Toward Creating Learning Communities of/for/by Learners and Teachers" Two keynote speakers, Dr. Yutaka Saeki (Professor Emeritus, University of Tokyo and Aoyama Gakuin University) and Dr. Seiichi Makino (Professor Emeritus, Princeton University) have been invited to give talks on this theme.

The Forum invites papers related to the main theme for both pre-college and college level as well as heritage Japanese language and culture education. In addition, we welcome any paper related to Japanese language education in general, including second language acquisition, linguistics, and technology in language learning and teaching, among others.

Based on the feedback we received, we will have more poster sessions at the Forum in 2014. We also started our own Facebook page. For subscription, please click like or いいね on our Facebook page.

Individual papers should be 20 minutes long with an additional 10 minutes for discussion. We will also have one-hour poster sessions. When you submit your proposal, please tell us your preference. For submission, visit http://www.princeton.edu/pjpf/call-for-papers/

The submission deadline is January 20, 2014. Notification of accepted papers will be sent in February 2014. Please note that an abstract and a paper in the Proceedings should be written in the same language as the one used in the presentation. Accepted papers will be published on the website. If you have any questions, please send e-mail to PJPF@princeton.edu.

Call for Papers: Southeastern Association of Teachers of Japanese Conference

The 2014 SEATJ Annual Conference will be held on February 22 (Saturday) and 23 (Sunday) at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. This year's conference theme is, "Keeping Japanese alive: prospects and possibilities for strengthening Japanese programs in the Southeast." In the Southeast, where Japanese is often considered to be a minor language, news of the elimination or curtailment of Japanese programs and loss of faculty appointments is unfortunately becoming increasingly common. By sharing our experiences with each other, we hope this conference can foster a collective understanding of the present situation through a discussion of the current issues we face, and we also hope to identify the prospects for developing forms of mutual support, cooperation, and countermeasures to further strengthen Japanese language education in the region.

Dr. Morgan Pitelka, Director of the Carolina Asia Center and Associate Professor in the Department of Asian Studies at UNC Chapel Hill, will give the keynote address.

Call for Papers

The organizing committee is soliciting proposals for 20-minute presentations on topics related to language pedagogy, Japanese linguistics, culture, computer assisted language teaching, classroom activities, second language acquisition, Japanese literature and film, and other related areas.

Submissions of proposals opens immediately and to receive full consideration must be submitted by Dec. 10, 2013. Papers and presentations may be given in either English or Japanese.

Please email your proposal of 250-300 words in English or 500-600 characters in Japanese to Chikako Mori: cmori@uncc.edu by December 10, 2013. We will notify accepted applicants by January 10, 2014.

Please include the following information.
1. Name, affiliation, position, and contact information of the presenter
2. Title of the presentation in English or Japanese
3. Abstract (approximately 500 words in English or 700 characters in Japanese)
4. AV equipment requests, if any.
